

Etere Supports Video Encryption for Streaming

Etere supports the encryption of videos for streaming. With Etere, your media assets can have an additional layer of security for better control. When the video is encrypted, the video cannot be accessed unless the viewer has the correct digital access key.

Etere allows the encryption of videos for streaming, including securing video from interception or even limiting content access to a specific region or demographics. Using an encrypted video codec makes it harder for individuals to intercept and view the video if they are not the intended audience. Etere allows encryption using Cenc-Aes-Ctr.

Benefits of Video Encryption

- Monetisation of exclusive content by limiting access to the video
- Enforcing copyright laws
- Maintain legal rights for content - For example, if the content is only allowed in certain countries, access for individuals from a different region should be restricted

Video Encryption

For greater control over who gets to view your content, Etere provides all the tools you need within the software, including the encryption of videos for streaming. For a media management strategy that works for your business, please get in touch with us.
