METexpo22: NDI in Master Control, Fabio Gattari, Etere

Venue: International Convention Centre, Sydney

Conference track: Thursday, March 17, 9.30am: NDI in Master Control

NDI in Master Control: It's no secret that NDI is the new face of revolution in information transmitting. Capable of higher quality of information transfer, broadcast quality videos can be delivered and received in a frame-accurate format. This high quality transmission makes it a suitable choice for switching in a live production environment within the Master Control room. NDI streams are able to transmit a full frame, full resolution version of videos and a lower resolution proxy version that can reduce the load on networks when streaming to multi viewers, vision mixers, or preview screens.

Etere discusses the characteristics of NDI, its advantages in a master control room, its respective challenges and how to overcome the challenges effectively.

About Media+Entertainment Tech Expo

For more than a century, the people of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers (SMPTE), have driven the details behind many significant advances in media and entertainment technology. Today, SMPTE continues to enhance the quality of the moving image, despite strong disruption within the media and entertainment landscape.

In recognition of the evolution of media, in 2018 a decision was made to re-brand the event to MEDIA + ENTERTAINMENT TECH EXPO, which will continue to run in conjunction with SMPTE. As a part of this re-brand, our event will greatly expand its exhibition categories to all leading suppliers within the media, entertainment and technology industries.
