

Etere has changed the access policy of its FTP service

Etere inform all of its customers that the policies for accessing its FTP server has changed in order to increase the security and privacy of contents managed through this service.

The most remarkable changes performed to the Etere FTP server have been outlined in the following list:

- In order to increase privacy, all customers' folders have been renamed to their related "customer codes".
- Security has been enhanced since it is not more allowed to browse folders within the Etere's FTP directory using the "upload" account.
- A "My Files" section has been added to the private area of the Etere's website to allow customers to quickly and safely download files from their folders, either via http or ftp.
- Uploading files through third-party FTP clients is possible only by specifying a valid username and password as well as the exact upload path (folder and subfolder).

Moreover, it's worthy mentioning that the automatic system for uploading logs concerning Etere modules will continue working correctly without any further user intervention.
